Damien Green announced as AIA Australia CEO

Melbourne, 4 November, 2009 -- AIA Australia today announced the appointment of Damien Green as the new CEO of AIA Australia, subject to regulatory approval.

Commenting on the appointment, Mark Wilson, AIA's Group CEO and President said, "Since joining AIA Australia in October 2006, Damien has led considerable growth across the business, particularly over the last two years in his role as General Manager, Insurance.

"I am confident that Damien will lead the company in a manner that maintains its reputation for strong business partnerships and service quality,' Mr Wilson said.

Mr Green said it was a great honour to have been appointed as CEO of AIA Australia and is looking forward to driving even greater momentum across the business.

He said, "I am energised by the opportunity to lead such a capable group of people and to continue building on our programs of client engagement, product innovation and technological efficiency.

"The AIA Australia team has played a pivotal role in maturing our business into a customer and delivery centric organisation and I'm proud to be leading this company into its future," he said.

He further commented on his plans to continue to foster a relentless focus on quality customer experience and to nurture a culture that focuses on execution and results.
